NEWCASTLE, August 27. A few Days ago as Two Men were passing through Long-Benton Churchyard, they observed some Bees rising out of the Ground, and they observed some Bees rining out or the Ground, and having a Spade with them, one of them, merely out of Curiofity, firuck the Spade into the Ground, and finding the Bees come out thicker, the deeper he dug, he continued digging until he unexpectedly came to a Coffin (there being no Similitude on the Spot of any Grave) which one of them firuck with the Spade, and immediately mouldered into Duft: They then observed a Lump of Honeycomb, which One of them inatched up, and in breaking the fame, found a human Scull, in the Cavity of which, the Bees had made the Honey.
